THE PRINCIPLE

Create less. Publish more.

Most of your audience won't see every post you publish. Repurposing lets one strong idea reach more people, in the formats they prefer — without starting from scratch each time.

Four rules for repurposing well

RULE 01

Adapt, don't duplicate

Change the format, the length and the angle for each platform. The message stays; the packaging changes.

RULE 02

Start with depth

A long-form piece gives you enough material to cut into many short ones. Short content rarely expands well.

RULE 03

Space it out

Spread pieces of the same idea over one to two weeks. Repetition helps people remember you.

RULE 04

Keep a library

Save your best ideas and their results. Good ideas can be repurposed again months later.

MINDSET

Repurposing isn't lazy. It's how you make sure your best thinking actually reaches the people it's meant for.

OVERVIEW

The repurposing cascade

One idea flows down into 16 pieces of content. Each stage uses the stage above it as its source material.

1 brief + 1 article + 3 videos + 5 posts + 5 Stories + 1 LinkedIn post + 1 email = 16 pieces of content from a single idea.

STEP BY STEP

The seven stages

For each stage: what you create, how AI helps, the prompt to use and the human touch that makes it yours.

01

1 CONTENT BRIEF

Core idea

Choose one topic your audience genuinely cares about and develop it into a brief: the main message, supporting points, examples and hooks.

HOW AI HELPS

Turns a vague topic into a structured plan, and suggests angles you might not have thought of.

HUMAN TOUCH

Pick an idea from real audience questions or your best-performing post. Add your own opinion to the brief.

R1 Develop the Core Idea

COPY-READY PROMPT

You are a content strategist. My niche is [NICHE] and my audience is [TARGET AUDIENCE]. My core idea is: [TOPIC]. Develop it into a content brief with: the main message in one sentence, 5 key points that support it, 3 realistic examples or scenarios, the most common objection or question, and 10 possible hooks. I will use this brief to create content for several platforms.

02

1 ARTICLE (OR VIDEO OUTLINE)

Long-form article

Expand the brief into one in-depth piece: a blog post, a long caption series, a YouTube outline or a newsletter essay. This is the source everything else is cut from.

HOW AI HELPS

Drafts a well-structured article from the brief in minutes.

HUMAN TOUCH

Add your personal story, real examples and opinions. Check every fact.

R2 Write the Long-Form Piece

COPY-READY PROMPT

Using this content brief: [PASTE CONTENT], write a 900–1,200 word article for [TARGET AUDIENCE]. Include a clear headline, a short introduction that names the problem, one section per key point with practical advice, and a conclusion with one next step. Where a personal example would help, leave a line that says "ADD MY STORY HERE". Tone: [TONE].

03

3 REELS, TIKTOKS OR SHORTS

Short videos

Pull three key points from the article and turn each one into a short, standalone video.

HOW AI HELPS

Finds the most “video-friendly” moments and writes hooks, scripts and on-screen text.

HUMAN TOUCH

Rewrite the script in your own spoken words before filming. Film all three in one session.

R3 Extract 3 Short Videos

COPY-READY PROMPT

Here is my article: [PASTE CONTENT]. Create 3 short video scripts of 30–45 seconds, each based on a different key point. For each script, give a hook under 10 words, the spoken script, on-screen text, and a closing call to action. Each video must make sense on its own.

04

5 FEED POSTS

Instagram posts

Create five feed posts in different formats so the same idea feels fresh: carousels, a quote, a checklist and a question.

HOW AI HELPS

Turns the article into slide text and captions for each format.

HUMAN TOUCH

Design with the templates in File 06. Space the posts out over one to two weeks.

R4 Create 5 Instagram Posts

COPY-READY PROMPT

From this article: [PASTE CONTENT], create 5 Instagram posts in different formats: an educational carousel (7 slides), a mistakes or myth carousel, a quote graphic, a checklist post, and an engagement question post. For each, write the slide or graphic text and a caption under 150 words with one call to action.

05

5 STORY FRAMES

Stories

Use Stories to start a conversation around the topic, test your audience’s knowledge and point them to your posts.

HOW AI HELPS

Writes interactive frames with poll, quiz and question-sticker ideas.

HUMAN TOUCH

Film at least one frame of yourself talking — Stories are where people get to know you.

R5 Plan 5 Story Frames

COPY-READY PROMPT

Create 5 Instagram Story frames based on this idea: [TOPIC]. Frame 1: a question or poll that introduces the topic. Frames 2–3: two quick tips. Frame 4: a quiz or slider to test understanding. Frame 5: an invitation to see the full post. Give on-screen text under 15 words per frame and the sticker type to use.

061 PROFESSIONAL POST*LinkedIn post

Reframe the idea for a professional audience: what you learned, what it means for their work, or a story from a client project.

HOW AI HELPS

Shifts the tone and structure to suit LinkedIn while keeping your message.

HUMAN TOUCH

Lead with a real experience. LinkedIn readers respond to specific, first-hand insight.

R6 Adapt for LinkedIn

COPY-READY PROMPT

Turn this article into a LinkedIn post for [TARGET AUDIENCE]: [PASTE CONTENT]. Lead with a personal or professional insight rather than a summary, keep paragraphs to 1–2 sentences, include one concrete example, and end with a question. Maximum 220 words, no hashtags in the body.

071 NEWSLETTER*Email

Send the most useful takeaway to your email list, with a personal note and one call to action.

HOW AI HELPS

Drafts subject lines and a short, personal email from the article.

HUMAN TOUCH

Write the opening yourself. Email is the most personal channel you have.

R7 Write the Newsletter

COPY-READY PROMPT

Write a short email newsletter based on this article: [PASTE CONTENT]. Give me 5 subject line options, a friendly opening of 2–3 sentences, the single most useful takeaway explained in about 150 words, and one call to action to [GOAL]. Write it like a message to one person, not a broadcast.

After the week: review

R8 Review and Plan the Next Round

COPY-READY PROMPT

Here are the results from the content I created around one idea: [PASTE CONTENT]. Identify which formats and angles performed best and suggest why. Then recommend which piece I should repurpose again next month, in what new format, and with what new angle.

A realistic schedule for one person

WHEN	TASK	TIME
Monday	Run R1 and R2: brief and article. Edit and add your story.	90 min
Tuesday	Run R3. Film all three short videos in one session.	60 min
Wednesday	Run R4. Design the five posts in Canva using File 06.	90 min
Thursday	Run R5–R7. Schedule the Stories, LinkedIn post and email.	45 min
Over the next 1–2 weeks	Publish the pieces gradually, reply to comments.	15 min/day
End of the cycle	Run R8 with your results. Choose the next core idea.	20 min

WORKED EXAMPLE

One idea, 16 pieces of content

Here's the full system applied to a single idea for an audience of new freelancers. Use it as a model for your own niche.

STAGE	OUTPUT
Core idea	How to price your first freelance project
Article	How to Price Your First Freelance Project (Without Undercharging)
Video 1	"Stop charging by the hour for your first project."
Video 2	"The three numbers you need before you send a quote."
Video 3	"What to say when a client says your price is too high."
Post 1	Carousel: Pricing your first project in 5 steps
Post 2	Carousel: 4 pricing myths new freelancers believe
Post 3	Quote graphic: "Your price is a decision, not a guess."
Post 4	Checklist: 7 things to check before you send a quote
Post 5	Question: "What was the first price you ever charged?"
Stories	Poll (hourly or per project?) → tip → tip → quiz → link to the carousel
LinkedIn	"The first quote I ever sent was far too low. Here's what I'd do differently."
Email	Subject: The pricing mistake I made on my first project

WHY IT WORKS

Notice that every piece makes the same core point, but each one enters from a different door: a how-to, a myth, a quote, a checklist, a question, a story. Someone who sees three of them won't feel they're seeing the same post.
